SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE

Warren Randolph Burgess (1889-1978) was a prominent banker in New York City. In 1953, at the start of the Eisenhower administration, he was appointed deputy to the Secretary of the Treasury. In 1954 he became Undersecretary of the Treasury. In 1957 he was appointed U.S. Permanent Representative to NATO where he served until 1961. After the end of the Eisenhower administration Burgess was active in a number of private organizations that supported U.S. relations with Europe, particularly the Atlantic Treaty Association and the Atlantic Council.

The papers of W. Randolph Burgess consist largely of copies of public speeches he gave between 1951 and 1962. Most of the speeches pertain to monetary policy and U.S. involvement with NATO. The collection also contains electrostatic copies of letters exchanged between Burgess and Dwight D. Eisenhower. Most of the letters date from the years 1961 and 1962, after Eisenhower left office, and are of a routine social nature.
